WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1.    A computer implemented method comprising:

extracting information from an application on a computer, the information including a plurality of attributes regarding the application; and deriving a signature for a subset of the attributes for the application.